Actually, it has buted much longer than that Japan Agened wir against China and the governments that believed in their coinmitments as long upo as the latter half of the Hoover administration. Germany's multiry campagn negan with invasion of Austria in the spring of 1938. Italy's aggression began in 1934, with the campaign to subdue Ethiopia. The event in September 1939 was not the beginning of war but only the formal recognition by Great Brittain and france of a state of viar that had been going steadily from bad to worse, for many years. There had been no peace in Europe since Italy proved that the only governments which could prevent war were too pre-occupied with self-interest to punish the invaders of Ethiopia. There had been no peace in Asia since Japan learned that China was protected by the League of Nations only in theory, not in

These recollections become more important with the passage of time; it is hard now to understand how so many men could have been so wilfully blind. The thing they professed to cherish in the name of peace was not peace. It was paralysis in the presence of acute prill. They hoped it would go away if they refused to look at it, but instead it grew more ferrifying. Then finally the spell was broken and the victims began to defend themselves. It was too late for France, as it had been too late for Austria, Czechosłovakia and Poland. It was too late for Norway and Denmark, too late for Belgium and the Netherlands, too late for Greece, Yugoslavia, Rumania and Bulgaria. There were casualties in Asia and near casualties, but today -after 1,000 days of open waifare-the battle is beginning to even up. It may take 1,000 more days, or 2,000, or 20,000, but it has been established beyond reasonable doubt that the three original aggressor powers are not going to conquor what they need or hold what they have, And there is no more terror now-nothing but grim determination to create the circumstances of peace by first destroying the warm their

We're Good, Too

A MOMENTOUS thing has happened to Americans in the last six months. They have quit feeling apologetic. It is time to start talking about the better attitude that has been substituted.

The reasons for the better attitude are plain, Americans quit kidding themselves after Pearl Harbor and began lesting at things squarely. They realized what a lot of nonrense had been passed from hand to hand in the name of wisdom the last few years.

They weren't going to enjoy any God-given rights to survive at the expense of the suffering of other people; they were going to have to fight for their lives, too. They were going to have to be as alert as the enemies who had planned to attack them. They were going to have to be as shrewd, as resourceful, as dynamic, as brave -and all the other virtues of a warring nation.

They didn't know whether they had it in them or not. They thought they did, but it had been a long time since they had tested themselves. So they began testing. The results were favorable. They proved at Bataan and Corregidor that they were courageous, if not very shrewd. They proved in their factories that they could be dynamic and resourceful

In the raid on the Marshall and Gilbert islands, in the battle of the Coral sea, in the exploits of volunteer U. S. aviators in Burma, they saw proof of their fighting ability. America went to war, Americans discovered they still had it in them to fight for survival when the sweet reasonableness fizzled out.

Meanwhile, they were cheered by Russia's demonstration that the strongest thing about the German army had been the weakness of its opponents; that any good army was a match for it. They read about the succeses of their own aviators and pienes against the Germans and the Japanese. And it dawned on Americans everywhere that they were good, too, at this war business when they turned their hand to it - a discovery that is going to loom large in the chapters of history that will be written about the plot of a despot named Hitler, an autocrat named Mussolini and a gang of Japanese sword wielders to conquer the world.

PLEASANT SUBJECT

Stories about progressive schools remain a source of comfort and cheer in these gloomy days. "We've been told of a little girl of 11 who came home on Friday afternoon and told her mother that her class had had its weekly cooking lesson, "That's nice," mother said. "And what did you learn?" "Oh, we just reviewed toast," the little student said.—New Yorker.

Cause of Confusion About Rubber and Gasoline Could Be Eliminated Easily.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

NEW YORK, May 28-Of Washington taking about gas and rubber it may be said that "the name thereof was called Babel because there the language of the whole earth was contounded." There is no need for all this confusion.

It is true, as the Truman committee peints out, that it had to go to seven separate agencies to find out about the tubber program. But if it takes seven agencies to deal with the problem -- and considering its complexity, it may take that manythere is no reason why the seven of them, not to mention the White House when the President is in a playful mood, have to emit separate streams of speeches, interviews and nublicity releases.

Since these seven agencies must work together, it is not asking for miracles to suggest that Michary Nelson, Jones, Ickes. Eastman, Henderson, Perkins and Wickard should lock themselves in a room and stay there living on bread and water until they have agreed on what they are going to ask the people to do about gas and rubber.

When they have made up their minds, which ought not to be too difficult, it would not be beneath their dignity, nor would it deprive any of them of their inalienable rights of free speech, if they issued one combined report on the facts, and one combined announcement of the government's policy.

Cause of Confusion

For while we are fighting a seven-ocean war, we just haven't the time and energy to struggle with seven publicity machines on the subject of why, with our rubher supply lost to Japan and our Atlantic tankers sunk or driven to port, we can not go joy-riding

Once it is explained to him, any man who cannot understand the problem is not bright enough to be allowed to operate an automobile; and any man who cheats, when he has been told what is needed, is morally unfit to operate an automobile. The Trumin committee of the senate has just issued a report based on a long inquiry. The first business of congress is to make up its mind whether the findings of the Truman committee are If they are, then congress has the data needed for making up its mind whether the administration policy on gas and ! desirable if every senato, and Hickman didn't complain. representative made it his busi-ness to explain to his own confores of the rationing.

It seems to me, for example, Senator Vandenberg Michigan would be doing the work of a United States senator if, when he himself has studied problem, he went back to Michigan and explained it to the people of Michigan. That would better than confusing his constituents by telling them that there are "selfish eastern demands" for "unnecessary and unwarranted" measures to conserve rubber in Michigan. Two-Way Government

For surely a representative government should be a two-way and not a one-way affair. A senstor or a representative should speak not only for his constituents, but to them as well. So would be a great service and highly appreciated if the congressmen would do what no Office of Facts and Figures can hope to do if they would take upon themselves the task of explaining the complicated war measures to the people back

The conservation of rubber in the country as a whole and of gas and oil in the eastern area is simple duty which has to be performed by the people them-selves it is easy to explain. It does not require a working knowledge of butadiene and styrene and polymerization and catalytic cracking to make everybody understand why our rubber supply must be scrupulously and rigorously saved up for the absolute necessities of war.

Synthetic rubber production scheduled for the next year won't any more than take care of military needs. The tire situation will begin to get really tough about mid-1943.

OTHER, forms of transport will be further restricted, too. That recent story on probable bus lines, urban and suburban railway ticket rationing wasn't carriers and airlines. fooling. In the first two months of 1942, 90.332,900 passengers traveled 5,973,000,000 miles. Train riders are traveling farther Ave-rage individual ride of 75,424,000 passengers in January-February 1941 was 55 miles, but it's up to 66 miles this year.

Part of the rail increise is traced to industrial commuter travel but much of it is not to that visit home by tolks with fresh money for the first time in years.

These unward travel totals occurred before gas rationing. They caught the railroads short of passenger equipment, with 37 817 cars In 1940 as against 52 000 in 1929. More efficient operation has permitted carrying more passengers. but there's a limit, espenially since troop movements will increase rather than decrease.

Don't be a bit surprised to find yourself on a bicycle before 1943. Defense workers will come first when bikes are released for saleprobably inside a month-but wheels are generally recognized as capable of easing the transportation punch. War models that don't use much vital material will get the green light in priorities, as

It's the general belief of doctors that lardburning through walking and eveling will benefit national health. Juvenile delinquency and domestic relations cases, some authorities speculate, may take a drop as the family relationship becomes closer due to gas rationing.

Anyway, bright or dark, the face of America is undergoing a change. It's here to stay for the duration. Restrictions won't be as tough as the no-civilian-travel edicts in force elsewhere, but pleasure gellivanting is out.

of life have thought about vital issues of the day-what they think now about the war and taxes, forced savings and the 40 hour week, total mobilization and myriad other problems facing this wartime democracy.

REDISCOVER Your HOME

You may never have realized what a habit it became to pile the family into the car and "go somewhere" whenever you had a free hour. Not that you haven't always loved your home, but just because it was fun to consider your car a sort of magic carpet, ready to effortlessly whisk you any-

Things are different now though - you and every other car owner is going to think twice before using that automobile! Tires and gasoline are too precious to squander for just a spin on a spring evening. And because you can't get a new car at all ... because replacements and repairs are made costly by the fact that all available materials must be speeded into ships and tanks, guns and planes for our fighting forces _you'll be learning to really live in your home! You're going to REDISCOVER the many kinds of joy it has to offer. And you're going to love it.

You'll be spending more time there now!

There are gay evenings to look forward to too, when family and friends drop in, and when you open your doors to welcome that boy on leave! Then you'll see your home through your visitors' eyes, and be proud of the good taste with which it's furnished; secure in the knowledge that because you bought the best you could afford your pride will not be short lived—but will renew itself through the years, every time you look about each lovely room.

There's the joy of a quiet evening-mother, dad and the children. Comfortable chairs to relax in; a sweetly tuned radio to listen to; lush carpets, a jay to the eye and to the feet. Colorful pictures, and mirrors reflecting a happy family ...

Marion Hawks Down Red Flares for Second Straight W

King Bacon Limits Fostoria to Eight Safeties.

BY LOREN W. TIBBALS Marion Sur Sports Editor

Marion's baseball Howks lived up to earlier predictions last night at Fostoria in downing the Fostoria Red Flares 10-4 in an Ohio State semi-pro league game. The contest was called at the end of the eighth inning because of darkness.

King Bacon pitched brilliant ball, allowing only eight hits, fanning three and walking live. He gave up only two hits in the first six innings, but got into trouble in the seventh after returing two of the first three patters to face him. Three singles and a walk gave the Red Flares two runs in the seventh. They added another pair in the eighth on three straight Fingles and a two-base error charged straight setback last night as Fre-mont blanked the Jaycees 11-0
